Prices for JARO SOUND services are formed by the quality of original materials submitted for the job. These are the main factors that affect the price: playing performance level, technical quality of the recording, the overall level of song arrangement and clear submission of requirements from the client.

1. Playing performance level: record must be recorded by a skilful and prepared musician. The main reason for the price increase is a bad performance that requires a lot of time to correct. Please note that the producer is not omnipotent, because some flaws can't be fixed at all, so you should record the best you can.
2. The technical quality of the recording: tracks must be prepared according to the JARO SOUND's technical requirements. They also have to be recorded with high-quality equipment and the set up instruments while respecting some simple rules. The more mistakes or artefacts are in recordings, the more time must be spent to fix them, which in turn leads to a price increase. More information about the technical requirements: <https://www.jarosound.com/wp-content/uploads/2020/07/Technical-Requirements.pdf>
3. Song arrangement: correctly and competently prepared arrangement forms half of the overall impression of the final product. Do not expect that good mixing will "hide" faults of poor composing. Do not be afraid to spend more time listening to and completion of all parts, choosing of right musical instrument, samples, etc.
4. Clear submission of requirements: a problem in any relationship between a client and a producer. Unfortunately, it happens that a creative person may struggle to explain his vision. And at this point, the producer becomes a musician's partner who's trying to get the best result, both from the professional and artist's point of view. Producer is not a clairvoyant, so it's important to provide all of the information and wishes clearly and in detail, thanks!
